Step 1 Start at one point in the room and measure the wall length from one corner to the nearest door or window casing (the outside of the trim). Then measure the overall width of the window or door opening (including the door and window casings). Continue measuring into the corner/end of wall or to the next door/window casing. The segments should add up to the overall length of the wall. Continue the procedure proceeding around the entire room until you return to the starting point.

Step 2 Measure the height of the ceiling in several places. Note any interruptions (beams, ducts, etc.)

Step 3 Note where the existing plumbing and electrical outlets are located.
